

Enzymes from Bacterial Natural Products Biosynthesis

My group investigates how molecules are constructed in nature. We use a combination of structural, chemical, and biochemical approaches to elucidate biosynthetic pathways and to unravel the mechanisms of unique enzymes. In this talk, I will discuss the biosynthesis of bacterial natural products, highlighting recent results from my group in areas including N-N bond formation.