Abstract:

New numerical methods based on semiclassical wavepackets for the time dependent Schrödinger Equation give very accurate and not so expensive solutions despite of the highly oscillatory and transient nature of the wavefunction. However, semiclassical approximations are valid only for a short time. We give an idea on how good approximation much beyond the Ehrenfest time is now possible, at least in the lower dimensional case.